HUNGARY ---> Effective 25 May 2006, amateur radio regulations in Hungary have changed significantly, in many respects breaking with age-long traditions, Chris (HA5X) reports. Key changes that also affect the international amateur radio community are as follows:

- * ECC REC (05)06 on the "CEPT Novice Licence" is implemented. Foreign visitors holding a "CEPT Novice Licence" can now work in Hungary using HA/home call. The CEPT Novice licence grants access to 160m, 80m, 40m, 15m, 10m, 2m, 70cm and 23cm bands, with reduced power levels. Please look up rules before operating!
- * Morse-code is no longer a requirement, VHF licencees can start using HF bands, without changing their HG callsigns. A 6 WPM Morse proficiency exam is still necessary to make CW QSOs, unless the CW QSO is between two computers.
- * Geographic call area numbers no longer exist in callsigns.
- * Callsign rules simplified, thus allowing for a wider choice of possibilities.
- * A new, simplified entry level exam and licence will be introduced for youngsters and seniors later this year.
- * Earlier licence levels consolidated into two: "CEPT Novice" and "CEPT". All existing licences get more privileges with this change.
